As to reorganization, Sir Henry Thornton, Chairman of the Board and President of the Canadian National railways, stated, in a communication which the Minister of Railways made to Parliament on March 27, 1923, that, when the new management took charge, about December 1, 1922, there had been three primary problems which demanded immediate attention: (1) the determination of the kind of an organization which was to be employed in the administration of the property; (2) the determination of the regions into which the property was to be divided for operating purposes and the location of regional and general headquarters; (3) the selection of officers for the various posts involved in the organization.

The organization which had been decided upon was what might be called a strengthened divisional organization, as distinguished from a departmental organization. The executive officers consist of a chairman and president, assisted by five vice-presidents, as follows:—

1. Vice-President in charge of operation, maintenance and construction;
2. Vice-President in charge of financial affairs;
3. Vice-President in charge of insurance, immigration, development, lands, express and telegraphs;
4. Vice-President in charge of legal affairs;
5. Vice-President in charge of traffic.

The above executive officers represent the minimum with which, in Sir Henry Thornton's judgment, it would be possible to operate such a property as the Canadian National railways; indeed, as time goes on and traffic increases, it would, he stated, probably be necessary to add another vice-president.

In dividing the railway into three regions for operating purposes, the principle followed had been to give to each operating region as much autonomy and local control in the actual operation of the property as was consistent with efficient principles of administration. Every effort would be made to confine the functions of the vice-presidents and the executive officers to policies, leaving to general managers, general superintendents and superintendents the responsibility of carrying out details.

Canadian National Railway Operations.—The reorganization of the National Railway Board was effected in October, 1922. The year 1923 was, therefore, the first complete year of operation of the combined and consolidated system collectively known as the Canadian National Railways and made up of the following lines:—

The Canadian Government Railways, including the Intercolonial railway and branch lines, the Prince Edward Island railway, the National Transcontinental railway, the St. John and Quebec railway (leased) and the Hudson Bay railway;

The Canadian Northern Railway System, including the Halifax and South Western railway and the Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific railway;

The Grand Trunk Pacific railway and branch lines (in receivership);
