Under mutual most-favoured-nation customs treatment each contracting country accords to the goods of the other the lowest duties applied to similar products of any foreign origin, unless there are reservations. These reservations would be tariff concessions, not considered of relatively great importance, which one country may grant to another on historical, geographical, or some related ground. Most-favoured-nation obligations do not include Canadian preferences given to other parts of the Empire. Canada's concessions to France in the Convention of Commerce of 1922 established the rates applicable to most-favoured foreign nations. The Convention was for an indefinite period, subject to termination on either party giving six months' notice. Canada gave such notice on Dec. 16, 1931, so that the Convention expired on June 16, 1932. That abrogation automatically cancelled all rates lower than the intermediate tariff to all most-favoured nations. The Canadian Government expressed its willingness to enter immediately on negotia-
