

not acquired domicile and who were liable to certain disabilities. Many of these however may exercise the rights of citizenship in Canada as provided by Sec. 4 of The Dominion Franchise Act (c. 51 of the Statutes of 1934).

The nationality of the foreign-born population is classified according to their country of birth. The third part of the table shows that in a large measure persons of foreign birth have either become Canadian subjects or have retained allegiance to the country of their birth. While this is generally true, yet in some instances the country of birth of the European population does not indicate their nationality. For example, of the total number of persons (17,033) born in Belgium 8,465 were of Canadian nationality, while of the remainder (8,656) claiming Belgian nationality only 8,258 were born in Belgium, leaving 259 born in contiguous countries—France, Germany, or Holland, while 114 were born in the United States.
