

of their business and Canadians returning to this country. The statement below summarizes the total inward movement for the three latest years. Statistics of immigration are analyzed in detail in Sect. 2 (see also Sect. 3). A qualification to be borne in mind, when considering the statistics as they are assembled in this statement, is that figures for ocean ports and for the land border are assembled on slightly different bases. In the case of 'returned Canadians' entering from the United States, who have been shown as returning after more than a year's absence, the classification is made upon the basis of intention, i.e., persons who have definitely gone to the United States with the intention of making their homes there, but return permanently to Canada within the year, are included with the much larger number who have been absent for more than a year. On the other hand, those entering by ocean ports, after an absence of more than a year, probably include some who have been absent from Canada on a protracted visit, but who had no intention of abandoning their Canadian domicile.
