

statistics, and (2) a policy of statistical co-ordination for the Dominion, under central direction. In 1915, following the recommendations in this Report, the office of Dominion Statistician was created but it was not until 1918 that the recommendations of the Commission were embodied in legislation.

The chief aims of the Bureau of Statistics are:—

- (1) To furnish factual data for administration and government.
- (2) To assist in developing Canada as a well-informed nation by standing ready to help business men and individuals to plan their enterprises and their lives.

It is in regard to the second of these aims that this review is concerned.

Inquiries.—Literally, hundreds of individual requests for specific information are received in the Bureau each day, routed through the main Divisions and answered as expeditiously as possible. Since the field of effort covers, from the statistical side, all phases of the national economy, there is scarcely a subject upon which the Bureau is not able to give some information. This will be emphasized from a glance at the Directory following. Nevertheless, it is only in regard to statistical questions that inquiries should be directed to this Bureau.

Publications.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics is the largest publishing department of the Federal Government: the subjects of its reports cover all phases of the national economy. Items in the vote of the Bureau, passed by Parliament each year, provide limited funds for the printing and processing of reports and bulletins. Reports printed from type are set up by the King's Printer, but the Bureau itself operates its own offset printing presses and all processed reports and bulletins are completely printed as well as published by the Bureau of Statistics.

The present policy with regard to the distribution of publications is based on sales to the public at actual cost of paper and press-work only; compilation, editing and other overhead costs are not included. The object is to extend the service to the public as widely as possible and so spread the compilation and overhead, which are the big items in total costs. A special subscription rate of $30 per year entitles the subscriber to receive a copy of each publication as issued, with the exception of news bulletins. Other special rates are set for series of publications in related groups such as:—

Applications for reports should be sent to the Bureau of Statistics; they should indicate the individual publication or series of reports in which the applicant is interested and include the necessary remittance in the form of a cheque or money-order made payable to the Receiver General of Canada, Ottawa.

Information Division, Department of External Affairs.—The task of this agency is to make Canada better known abroad and to encourage interest in and understanding of international affairs within Canada.

The Division prepares for Canadian missions abroad—Embassies, Legations, Consulates and Trade Commissioners' Offices—a regular supply of information material on developments in Canada. Reference papers, booklets, features, photo-
