

Occurrence of the Ore Deposits.—The ore deposits so far drilled all lie within a length of 90 miles and a width of three miles, and have been found mainly as surface outcrops. Most of the surface is covered by a foot or two of glacial debris, so it seems likely that an intensive search will disclose additional deposits. A line of outcrops ten miles east of the drilled deposits may indicate a second, parallel range of orebodies.