

Section 13.—Occupations

Information under this heading from the 1951 Census was not available at the time of preparation of this Chapter but may be found in the regular series of census bulletins. Summary tables showing the occupations of the Canadian people as at the date of the 1941 Census are given in the Year Book 1943-44, pp. 1062-1073, and in the Year Book 1948-49, pp. 160-161.

Section 14.—Dwellings, Households and Families

Statistics on dwellings, households and families, derived from the 1951 Census returns, are shown in Table 27; the figures are exclusive of the Yukon and Northwest Territories. Additional information on these subjects, which was not available at the time of preparation of this Chapter, may be found in the regular series of census bulletins.

The definitions on which the figures of Table 27 are based are as follows:—

Dwelling.—A structurally separate set of living premises with private entrance from outside the building or from a common hallway or stairway inside. The entrance must not be through another person's living quarters. Each single house, each apartment or suite in an apartment house, duplex, triplex or structurally connected single house; each flat in a building containing flats; each half of a double house; and each section of a row or terrace counts as one dwelling unit. Other structures such as summer cottages, automobile trailers, tents, cabins, railway cars, houseboats, etc., are also counted as dwelling units if they are occupied by persons who have no other usual residence.

Household.—A person or a group of persons occupying one dwelling unit. Every individual is a member of some household. The number of households will be equal to the number of occupied dwellings. A household usually consists of a family group with or without servants, lodgers, etc. However, it may consist of a group of unrelated persons sharing a dwelling, or one person living alone.

Family.—A husband and wife (with or without children) or a parent and unmarried child (or children including guardianship children under 21 years of age and single) living together in the same dwelling.
