⁵ Includes amounts raised by counties and the township grants on salaries of rural public school teachers. ⁶ Excludes local boards within larger units.

Subsection 2.—Private Elementary and Secondary Schools

Private schools include all those not operated by publicly elected or appointed boards. Except in Quebec, they receive no support from public funds. Instruction is similar to that given in public schools except that more opportunities may be given for music, art, etc., and in schools under religious control there is greater emphasis on religious instruction. In most provinces there is some form of inspection or regulation by the provincial Department of Education.

Of the 828 private schools reporting in 1951, 505 were in Quebec, 122 in Ontario, 120 in the Prairie Provinces, 43 in British Columbia and 38 in the Maritimes. There were 6,455 full-time teachers of whom 1,334 were men. Outside of Quebec, the salaries for lay teachers ranged from $900 to $5,000 with a median of $1,862 for women, and from $1,150 to $8,000 with a median of $2,905 for men.

In these schools, about 66 p.c. of the pupils, including 46,000 girls and 29,000 boys, were in the elementary grades. At the secondary level there were 24,000 girls and 13,000 boys.
