the industries engaged in the production of consumer goods, by reason of the expanded demand for their products, bettered their positions.

Some major changes took place in the ranking of the ten leading industries in 1953. The impetus given to Canadian manufacturing production by the Korean war is reflected in the advance of the aircraft industry to the eighth position. This industry was in fourth place in 1944 and sixteenth place in 1952. The shipbuilding industry also bettered its position as a result of the current defence program, placing thirty-fourth in 1952 and thirteenth in 1953. Pulp and paper has retained its premier position since 1946. Nonferrous metal smelting and refining and motor vehicles bettered their position in 1953, but slaughtering and meat packing, butter and cheese, and railway rolling stock declined in relative importance. Petroleum products, sawmills and primary iron and steel were in the fifth, six and seventh position, unchanged as compared with 1952.
