Trade Fairs and Missions Branch.—It is the function of this Branch, through its Trade Fairs Abroad Division and its Trade Missions Division, to organize and co-ordinate the trade fairs and missions programs sponsored by the Department. Liaison within the Department and program development are conducted through advisory committees—one on trade fairs abroad and another on trade missions. Each committee is convened and chaired by the Director of the Branch and includes representatives of all trade promotion branches of the Department.

The 1963 program of the Trade Fairs Abroad Division included exhibits in 35 trade fairs held in the United States, Britain and other European countries, Australia and Japan. At many of these exhibitions, selected Canadian companies displayed their products in individual booths within a Canadian exhibit. However, exhibits ranged in size from trade information booths manned by Departmental personnel to 'solo' fairs completely organized by the Department and involving upwards of 100 business firms. Outstanding was the solo fair held in the United States at Philadelphia, from Nov. 11 to 16, in which 103 Canadian firms participated. The 20 trade missions organized in 1963 by the Trade Missions Division included 13 teams of Canadian businessmen sent to study special markets in Europe, the United States, Latin America and the Middle East, and seven groups of business visitors brought to Canada from Argentina, Britain, Jamaica, Japan, Mexico, South Africa and Venezuela. Four missions were concerned with improving Canadian production in the furniture and machinery industries and the remainder to promoting the exports of a particular industry or commodity group. Both Divisions work in close co-operation with trade associations and other interested organizations outside the Department.

International Trade Relations Branch.—The function of the International Trade Relations Branch is to safeguard and improve terms of access for Canadian exporters in foreign markets. In the field of trade policy the Branch is concerned with the conduct
