PART IV.—ORDER OF CANADA AWARDS

In 1967, the Centennial of Confederation, there was established a system of honours and awards for Canada. On the recommendation of the Government, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second approved the issue of Letters Patent establishing a society of honour to be known as "The Order of Canada" for the purpose of according recognition to Canadian citizens and other persons for merit. The Order consists of three awards—the Companion of the Order of Canada, the Medal of Courage and the Medal of Service. The Chancellor and Principal Companion of the Order is the Governor General and nominations for awards are made directly to the Governor General by an Advisory Council composed of the Chief Justice of Canada (Chairman), the Clerk of the Privy Council, the Under Secretary of State, the Chairman of the Canada Council, the President of the Royal Society of Canada and the President of the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada. Companions of the Order are selected on the basis of "merit, especially service to Canada or to humanity at large" and the maximum number shall never exceed 150. The Medal of Courage is awarded for the performance of "an act of conspicuous courage in circumstances of great danger" and is not, of course, limited to a fixed maximum number. The Medal of Service is awarded for different categories of meritorious service from that for Companions and not more than 50 may be given in any one year.

On July 7, 1967, the Governor General, in his capacity as Chancellor and Principal Companion of the Order of Canada, appointed the following:—
