

HOMICIDE RATES, 1987

By Census Metropolitan Area

In 1987, there were 642 homicides in Canada, 2% fewer than the annual average number for the past 10 years.

Homicide rates were highest in Sudbury (7.46 offences per 100,000 population), followed by Saint John (5.74), and Regina and Winnipeg at 4.75 each. Cities with the lowest rate of homicide included Sherbrooke (0.76) and Victoria (0.77).

1987 data mapped by Census Metropolitan Area

Map produced by Geocartographics Division, Statistics Canada.